TERRIBLE WIFE-MURDER IN WASHINGTON.

A Dissipated Husband Shoots His Wife Because She Would Not Live With Him and Then Blows His Own Brains Out.

From the Washington papers we have the following particulars of a terrible tragedy which was enacted in that city Tuesday night about half-past 8 o'clock.

Fred, de Frouville, who has been separated from his wife for several months, pending her application for a divorce, called at her residence, No. 610 A street, southeast, and rang the door-bell. Mrs. Andrean de Fronville, the wife, who was engaged in the parlor at the time instructing Mr. George N. Buckingham in German, went to the front window and peered out. recognized her husband, who appeared to be slightly under the influence of liquor, and said, in answer to his application for admission, "No, Fred., you cannot come . I do not want you here." . Open the door," he demanded in loud tones, " or I'll break it in. "Don't, Fred., for God's sake," she pleaded; and as the frenzied husband be-gan to use force to get in the frightened woman turned to young Buckingham and "George, go quickly and get a policeman, Fred, will kill me. The young man started to obey, but had only reached the back door when a crash told him that the man had forced his way in. A scuffle and a few unintelligible words were then borne to the young man's cars, followed by two pistol reports in rapid

The furniture in the tastefully-furnished parlor was undisturbed, and without the blood, which was so plentiful in the chamber, sleep instead of death inspitu have been imagined. Officers Bryan, Nicholson, and Sergeant Marks soon arrived and took possession of the premises, pending the arrival of the coroner. Mrs. de Frouville, the murdered lady, was about thirty-two years of age, and was of Danish parentage, her maiden name being Andrean Alstrop, She was married to Frederick de Frouville about six years ago, and fixed happily with him until two years since, when he began to be dissiputed and cruel to her. She bore his bad treatment until

His first act was to send his wife to the His first net was to send his whe to the spring for a bucket of water, and while she was away he took down his rifle, one of those old style, eight-feet-long fellows, put in a big charge of powder, and drove a bullet home on top of it. Next he took off his clothes and lay down he had his him too tind to one.

Mr. Eudy had attended Cabarrus court and never-failing. two weeks ago and got to drinking. He went home with his mind in a badly disordered condition from the effects of drinking, and was laboring under the de-lusion that he had mortgaged his two mules and farm to a lawyer while in Concord. Last week he went to Stauly Court to see the lawyer to whom he supposed he had made the mortgage, and on finding him was told that no such transaction had ever occurred between them. With all the arguments and explanations the lawyer could make be could not satisfy the man that the supposed mortgage was all the work of his own deluded imagination, and Mr. Eudy returned to his home in a despondent mood. He had evidently made up his mind about what he was going to do; for he no sooner entered his house than he told his wife to take up the bucket and go to the spring for

MARKABLE DREAM. A Titusville, Pa., telegram of the 3d says: The body of John Pierce, who was drowned on Sunday, February 4, at the time the Franklin-Street bridge of this place gave way during the recent disastrous floods, was found this morning on the Watson flats, about a mile and a half below this city, and just op-posite the old Pierce homestead, in Venango county. The remains of the unfortunate lad were found through a remarkable revelation. For several weeks the family had utterly despaired of ever discovering the body. All hope had been abandoned, when Rev. Mr. Hoover, a Methodist clergyman, in Sunville, had a dream a few nights ago, in which he saw the spot where the body was to be found, and, although he had never seen the place in reality, the vision was so perfect that when he awoke he could not drive the dream from his mind.

He visited the dead boy's father and described the place he had seen in the dream.

He was confident that the remains could be found in the spot he described, which was familiar to Mr. Pierce. The elergyman and the dead lad's father visited Waton flats this morning, and there, sure enough, lying several rods from the bed of Oil creek, the body was found, half em bedded in sand and mud at the foot of a lump of bushes, with the lower extremities protruding. The clothes were in-tact, and the boy's overcoat was firmly buttoned around his threat. A watch was found in a pocket in the vest, which had stopped at lifteen minutes of 4 o'clock—three hours after the accident in which the Richmond. The sale of the property has, vails over Rev. Mr. Hoover's revelation.

The Tenkesbury-Almshouse Horrors. A Boston telegram of yesterday says: The investigation into the management of the Tewkesbury almshouse was resumed this morning. Mrs. Charlotte A. Thomas, It is probable that had young Bucking-ham not obeyed the frantic appeals of Mrs. de Frouville to go for a policeman there tients, evidently did not know her bu wend have been another murder commit-ted and another corpse laid out in the blood-stained parlor, though resolute action on his part might have prevented the trag-edy. A prominent official of the Treasury Department, commenting upon the fact that the amount of bonds surrendered was so much less than the amount the Department offered to redeem, said that it indicated either that the people who complained of a scarcity of money did not hold called bonds, or that the people who held the bonds were in no great haste to exchange them for money.

BALTIMORE MD., April 3.—Some boys were playing around an open man-hole of a sewer to-day, when one of them threw a lighted match in the sewer. An explosion of gas immediately followed, which fore up the streets, shook walls, and loosened foundations of the neighboring houses. While workmen were eleaning the debris out of the sewer this afternoon the bodies of the two little boys, aged five and six years respectively, were found. They had been playing in the street when the explosion occurred.

Dr. Jenner, physician-in-ordinary to the Queen, has directed that she take almost complete rest as the best means of preventing swelling in the injured part and of reducing the pain. This course will, it is believed, soon reduce the slight inflammation and give her Majesty the full use of her limb.

A dispatch from Windsor Castle, dated 2 o'clock this afternoon, says the Queen's general health continues excellent, despite the precautionary safe-guards as to exercise which her physician has imposed, and that although not permitted to walk yet she took a drive during the forenoon, riding in a carriage with the Princess Beatrice.
